16 Marshall Plan Nations Ponder Question Of Spain

Franco Eyes Aid Program

Anti-Red Units Await Parley

PARIS, March 15—The 16 Marshall Plan nations of Western Europe faced the problem today of whether to include Spain in their anti-Communist bloc.

Meeting under the shadow of the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia and increasing Soviet pressure on Finland, the Democratic states were confronted by a Portuguese demand that Franco Spain be granted American economic aid as an ally against Russia.

Dictator Franco was reliably reported to have instructed his brother, Nicholas, Spain's ambassador to Lisbon, to urge Portugal to present the demand.

British Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin scheduled a meeting with French Foreign Minister Bidault this morning, reportedly to discuss ways to head off the movement to invite Spain.

STATE DEPARTMENT officials in Washington have indicated that the question of Spanish participation in the European Recovery Program is up to the European nations.

The conference will be concerned primarily with organizing the economies of the 16 states to make the most effective use of American aid in bolstering their resistance to Soviet penetration.

The French press commented this morning that Senate endorsement of the Marshall Plan on the eve of the conference "opens a new lease on life for Western Europe's nations."

There were two questions on the lips of both delegates and observers in Paris today. One

County Awaits New Crime Lab

The new $15,000 mobile crime laboratory recently turned over to the state of Ohio by the Buckeye State Sheriff's Association and the Ohio Moose Association will go on display Tuesday in four Pickaway County communities.

The ton and one-half crime detector on wheels will be in Ashville at 1 p. m.; Circleville in front of the courthouse at 2 p. m.; Williamsport at 4 p. m. and New Holland at 5 p. m.

Following a 10-day, 29-town tour, the crime car will be based at the London prison farm subject to immediate call wherever needed in the state, Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff, president of the sheriff's association, said.

Kiernan's ONE MAN'S OPINION

"Kissing Jim" has been visiting New York. Most girls denied interest in his visit, but every time he aimed a pucker a target ran up.

There are many who disapprove Gov. Folsom's osculating but it must be said for him that he's kissing in a world which mostly features slugging.

It may never put him in the White House but if it does he'll know how to use that balcony as Shakespeare intended balconies should be used.

I heard one girl say, "If Folsom is typical of the South why is Truman so sore at Southerners?" Her friend says, "You've got it wrong; Harry isn't sore at anybody but he just can't seem to explain it."

SHOWING off her awards is Nicodemus, the Beaver Falls, Pa., cat that saved the lives of her owners when gas seeped from a broken line in their apartment. She was honored with the Paddy Reilly Hero Medal and the American Humane Association Fund Award for awakening Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reefer and their tiny daughter in time for them to escape death.

Taft Labor Law Hit

Political Ban Said Illegal

WASHINGTON, March 15—U. S. District Judge Ben Moore ruled today that the Taft-Hartley labor law provision banning political expenditures by labor unions is unconstitutional.

Moore made the ruling in dismissing an indictment against the CIO and its president, Philip Murray. The indictment charged Murray had violated the Taft-Hartley law because of political support given a congressional candidate by the CIO news.

Moore's decision declared that the political section of the law is "an abridgement of the rights granted by the first amendment of the constitution."

The CIO union had also argued that the provision violates other constitutional amendments, but Moore said he did not feel it necessary to rule on those.

HE HANDED down his decision in typed form in open court and told lawyers for the government and for the union to read it and come back to him if they had any questions.

His ruling sustained a union motion for dismissal of the indictment against Murray and the CIO.

Judge Moore's decision said: "Judged by its plain terms, the statute on its face fails to survive the constitutional test."

"I am of the opinion that the questioned portion of Section 304 of the act is an unconstitutional abridgement of freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and freedom of assembly."

Leist Selected Head Of VFW

Neil Leist, Circleville Route 1, Sunday afternoon was elected commander of Henry Page Folsom Jr. Veterans of Foreign War post when some 400 members selected officers for the coming year.

The new commander was unopposed at the election and replaced Virgil Timmons who was named to the board of trustees. Leist was the senior vice-commander. That seat was filled by Darrel Courtwright.

Elected junior vice-commander was Robert Vandervort; chaplain, Edward Shephard; judge advocate, Guy Cline; and James Scott was reelected Quartermaster.

U. S. To Back Chile In Probe Demands

UN To Open Debate Wednesday On Explosive Czech Question

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., March 15—The United States' decision to support the proposed investigation of Russian intervention in Czechoslovakia today underlines what may be the most crucial week in United Nations' history.

The Security Council, still struggling with the explosive Palestine issue, is now faced with the Chilean demand that the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia be aired this week.

Many delegates here feel that the world organization is confronted with a doubled-barreled problem that may affect the UN's very existence.

On Wednesday afternoon, the council will decide whether the Chilean request is valid. Seven of the 11 members nations must vote favorably for the issue to be placed on the agenda.

CHILE HAS specifically asked that the council investigate the Prague coup and establish whether Russia's alleged part in the Communist seizure of state was a threat to the peace.

Now that the Americans have announced their backing of Chile's proposal, it is generally felt that the investigation has a much better chance of making the agenda.

Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko has already asked the Kremlin for instructions. He is expected to battle fiercely against the placing of the probe on the agenda.

In the opinion of many observers, both Gromyko and the Ukrainian delegate may walk out if the council accepts the Chilean complaint.

Gromyko is expected to argue that the Chilean request is invalid, and not provided for in the UN charter.

MEANWHILE, the pressing problem of Palestine—where the

New Greco-Turk Aid Fund Asked

WASHINGTON, March 15—Secretary of State Marshall told Congress today that the situation in Eastern Europe is "far more fateful now than it was one year ago" when the United States first went to the aid of Greece and Turkey.

Marshall urged speedy approval of an additional $275 million in Greco-Turkish military aid. The secretary accused Yugoslavia, Albania, and Bulgaria of "flouting" the United Nations resolution against their aiding Communist guerrillas in Greece.

MARSHALL'S statement was made as the House foreign affairs committee began work on the $5.3 billion European Recovery Bill passed by an overwhelming Senate vote over the weekend.

Marshall told the senators that the Greek situation is "serious" but "not without hope." He said that unfavorable economic factors "now show signs of improvement."

YELLOW SPRINGS, March 15—The white-haired widow of a career naval officer said today that she would prefer to go to jail rather than pay income taxes to help finance another war.

Challenging the government's right to tax her for military purposes, Mrs. Caroline Urie figured that 34.6 percent of her 1947 income tax, due today, was earmarked for war.

Truman and Bureau of Internal Revenue officials, she would pay only 65.4 percent of the tax. The remaining 34.6 percent she mailed to four pacifist organizations—"every one of them non-profit"—and sent the receipts along with her tax return.

At the same time, Russia can be expected to inform the council that further consultations with the Arabs and Jews is futile and tends only to delay enactment of the partition plan.

Preliminary indications are that the U. S., France and China will inform the council for their inability to agree with Russia on a common solution for the Holy Land.

Meyers Gets Light Term

20 Months To 5 Years Is Read

WASHINGTON, March 15—Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers was sentenced today to serve from 20 months to five years in prison for inducing Blieriot Lamarre to lie to a Senate committee and was ordered committed to jail immediately.

Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff in refusing to grant Meyers freedom on bail pending appeal asserted that there had been "insinuations and intimations" by defense counsel during the trial that the "government's key witness" was "blackmailing" Meyers.

Lamarre, "dummy" president of the war contracts firm from which Meyers allegedly reaped rich profits, was the key prosecution witness.

Holtzoff said that "not a single witness was produced to substantiate those insinuations."

A JURY LAST Friday convicted Meyers of inducing Lamarre to perjure himself before a Senate war investigating subcommittee probing the general's connection with Aviation Electric Corp., a Dayton, Ohio, war contracts firm.

Meyers was alleged to have netted more than $150,000 from his connection with the firm he said he established because Mrs. Lamarre was his "girl friend."

The maximum sentence under the three counts on which Meyers was convicted was 30 years.

Italy Eyes Big Election Next Month

Democracies Fear New Red Gains

ROME, March 15—Will the Communists win in Italy or will Premier Alcide De Gasperi beat them? These two questions are the key to Italy's April 18th national elections.

Premier De Gasperi's Christian Democrats and Palmiro Togliatti's Communists are the two giants in the showdown which will determine whether Italy remains a democracy, in the western sense, or becomes a Soviet satellite.

The issue is clear to all Italians. So clear, that the 96 legally-constituted political movements were forced only by lack of campaign funds to group into 26 "parties," "blobs," "fronts" when, more than ever before, each would have preferred to play the card of well-known Italian "individualism."

There are various apparent factors which render difficult the amalgamation of the multitude of Italian political groupings into two, or three, or even four big parties.

THEY ARE currently known as "ideology," "clericalism" and "anti-clericalism," "conservative liberalism" and "progressive liberalism," "progressive socialism" and "reformist socialism."

And they are there all right. But dig beneath the surface and you'll find one word alone: Fear; one recent lesson: Fascism.

Thousands of Italian politicians who remember all too clearly the Fascist tragedy and the hundreds of thousands of Italians who paid with their lives for their Blackshirt allegiance, are most reticent to cast their lot with either of the two major parties.

They are not certain that one or the other—or both in succession, will not fall into disgrace for international "reasons"—meaning conflict.

In the election-coalition efforts, the Communists have been most successful and the Christian Democrats not at all.

Togliatti has succeeded in forming the high-sounding "People's Front for Democracy, Liberty and Justice."

Packer Strike Accord Sought

CHICAGO, March 15—Final efforts to avert a nationwide strike of 100,000 CIO packing-house workers were scheduled today by federal mediators despite the refusal of two packers to accept arbitration of the wage dispute.

The walkout which would affect 100 packing plants has been set for 12:01 a. m. tomorrow.

Meetings with company and union officials were called by James J. Spillane, regional director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, after arbitration efforts were stymied last night.

Hopes of averting the strike faded as both Swift and Co., and the Cudahy Packing Co. rejected an offer by the CIO Packinghouse Workers union to let the federal government arbitrate the dispute.

The union seeks a wage boost of 29 cents an hour, but has indicated it would accept 19 cents.

IT WOULD TAKE LOTS OF onions to smother the steaks the butcher will get from this 4-year-old shorthorn steer. A worker at the Kansas City Livestock Market looks small beside the unusually large animal. It is six feet, two inches tall at the shoulders.

World Events Developing Into Momentous Crisis

WASHINGTON, March 15—Rapidly-developing world events appear today to be heading to a crisis within the next week which may call for momentous decisions by President Truman and his top advisers.

The possibility of promising American military support for a Western European bloc to help stop Communist expansion is known to be under definite consideration.

Pointing up the situation which top officials describe as very serious were these other developments:

1. Secretary of Defense James Forrestal and high military leaders ended a secret conference in Key West over the weekend after canvassing remnants of America's military might of World War II. They are believed also to have studied the possibilities of passing selective service or universal military training.

2. ARMY Secretary Kenneth Royall, in designating April 6 as Army Day, said that the people of the United States "must make every effort to be so well prepared" that there will never be a third World War.

3. Sen. Walter George (D) Ga., interpreted Russia's newly-revealed bread shortage as a possible maneuver by Moscow to build up stocks "for some new emergency."

4. House Speaker Joseph Martin told a Fall River, Mass., audience that "I wish to God I could assure you that we will never have to fight another world war."

5. James A. Farley, former postmaster general, predicted that the Communists will seek to take Italy. Farley said that if this occurs the United States will have to take action.

Annual Spring Fires Coming

With the coming of "springish" weather, Circleville firemen are beginning to get a start on grass fires which plague them about this time each year.

Sunday saw the start of the "grass fire season" when city firemen were called twice to put out fires, started to clean out the dead grass and weeds, which got out of control.

The first was a fire at Seyfert avenue and Court street at 1 p. m. Sunday, closely followed by the other in the same general vicinity on Northridge road at 3:35 p. m.

Direct will have to take a stand.

6. Sen. Robert Taft (R) Ohio, declared that Communism is the greatest danger facing the world at present but disagreed with Former Secretary of State James Byrnes who said the United States may be facing a crisis with Russia within four or five weeks. Taft said he knows of no danger of military aggression on the part of Russia.

4 Men Killed As Blast Rips Kentucky Plant

THE DEEP concern moving all those charged with high responsibility has been voiced during the past week. Mostly they were touched off by the keen sense of what has happened in Czechoslovakia.

The next step is expected to come now in Finland, whence a delegation, without power to negotiate a treaty, will answer Premier Josef Stalin's demand for a military alliance.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 15—Four men were known dead, 15 were reported injured and 25 persons missing in the explosion of a motor testing building of the International Harvester Co. plant on the outskirts of Louisville today.

It was not immediately determined as to the seriousness of the injuries of each of the men but officials at the scene said four of those named were "critical."

Jefferson County and Louisville fire and police emergency rescue crews joined with volunteer rescue crews of the plant in probing through the wreckage of the one story concrete and steel building for other victims after the flames were extinguished.

A spokesman for the company, R. C. Almgren, public relations representative of the plant, said the explosion occurred from unknown causes today as the plant was changing shifts. Fifty-six men are normally employed on each watch, and it was feared that others may be included among the missing.

Company and police officials were busy attempting to check the list of employees to determine the exact number of workmen in the plant at the time of the explosion.

She said she had a son-in-law in the Army during the last war, and adding that "he doesn't agree with me either."

Mrs. Urie said she had no objection to paying taxes "for any reasonable constructive purpose like schools or police protection" but added:

"It's the principle that's important to me. Obedience to government authority cannot be unlimited."

Miners Streaming From Pits

'Willing, Able' Clause Cited

PITTSBURGH, March 15—Soft coal miners streamed out of the pits by the thousands today in protest against failure of bituminous operators to establish a pension plan.

Unofficial estimates placed the number of idle diggers at nearly 165,000 in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky and Illinois.

Production loss will approach the 200,000 ton mark daily, a spokesman said, and curtailment of production for more than 10 days will force a shutdown of the nations steel industry.

Most of the struck miners were in Western Pennsylvania and Kentucky. Some 20,000 of Kentucky's 25,000 diggers were out, a United Mine Workers official reported. About 30,000 Western Pennsylvania diggers were out.

HARDEST hit by the walkouts were U. S. Steel Corp., Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp., and Republic Steel Co.

Nine mines of H. C. Frick Coke Co., U. S. Steel subsidiary, were idle and production loss was estimated at 40,000 tons daily, were closed.

Three mines of Republic Steel were shut down, 14 of Pittsburgh Coal Co., and five of Hillman Coal and Coke Co., were among others closed.

Walkouts in the Frick mines were expected to cause steel production curtailments in U. S. Steel plants within 10 days, a spokesman said.

Operators and steel companies feared the strike would spread to all United Mine Workers diggings quickly, bringing on a general coal strike.

Sunday meetings were called following a statement by United Mine Workers' Chief John L. Lewis that the miners' contract, executed last July 8, had been "dishonored" and "defaulted" by the operators.

John P. Busarello, president of UMW District 5, bracketing the Pittsburgh area, declared:

"THE MINERS are very bitter over the operators' failure to grant them their pensions."

"Some of the mines in this district will be down, and some will be operating, but I cannot tell you how many will be idle."

It was believed a clause in the UMW contract that miners would stay on the job so long as they were "able and willing" had been taken as the green light for walkouts in the current contract.

McGinnis still has a piece of adhesive plaster over the bridge of his nose and a few scars on his forehead, but appeared in good condition as he pounded the pavements for the first time since the mishap.

Reds Grab City

PEIPING, March 15—Szepeik, bitterly fought over key railway junction 60 miles south of Changchun, was reported today to have fallen to hard-driving Communist forces.

She said she had a son-in-law in the Army during the last war, and adding that "he doesn't agree with me either."

Mrs. Urie said she had no objection to paying taxes "for any reasonable constructive purpose like schools or police protection" but added:

"It's the principle that's important to me. Obedience to government authority cannot be unlimited."

Widow Withholds War-Bound Tax Money

YELLOW SPRINGS, March 15—The white-haired widow of a career naval officer said today that she would prefer to go to jail rather than pay income taxes to help finance another war.

So, she wrote to President Truman and Bureau of Internal Revenue officials, she would pay only 65.4 percent of the tax. The remaining 34.6 percent she mailed to four pacifist organizations—"every one of them non-profit"—and sent the receipts along with her tax return.

Challenging the government's right to tax her for military purposes, Mrs. Caroline Urie figured that 34.6 percent of her 1947 income tax, due today, was earmarked for war.

So, she wrote to President Truman and Bureau of Internal Revenue officials, she would pay only 65.4 percent of the tax. The remaining 34.6 percent she mailed to four pacifist organizations—"every one of them non-profit"—and sent the receipts along with her tax return.

Mrs. Urie, who styled herself "a Quaker, a pacifist and a social worker," stated:

"If they want to send me to jail because I won't pay the other 34.6 percent, that's all right with me. I'm perfectly willing to go to jail. I'll never pay any more money for war."

Mrs. Urie, who worked with Jane Adams at Chicago's famed Bull house and was director of the school for immigrant children for five years, wrote to the President and internal revenue officials:

"As a Christian, I must henceforth refuse to contribute in any way to maintaining the institution of war."

The invention of the atomic bomb, she stated, made war a "final criminal absurdity."

Mrs. Urie refused to divulge her exact age, saying "just call me a white-haired widow—and a very aged widow at that."

She admitted that she and her husband frequently had disagreed on her pacifist views.

Her husband, she said, was a medical officer in the Navy for "many, many years." He was retired before World War I, she said, because of injuries received in a target practice explosion aboard a battleship.

She said she had a son-in-law in the Army during the last war, and adding that "he doesn't agree with me either."

Mrs. Urie said she had no objection to paying taxes "for any reasonable constructive purpose like schools or police protection" but added:

"It's the principle that's important to me. Obedience to government authority cannot be unlimited."

was, "who's next on the Soviet list?"

But a second and more insistent query is: "Will the United States furnish military guarantees of the security of Western Europe?"

AN INDICATION of the importance attached to the conference was the fact that 14 of the countries are represented by their foreign ministers. Only Iceland and Switzerland—both concerned about preserving their neutrality—failed to send their top diplomats.

Five nations—Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg—will take time Wednesday to sign a pact creating the nucleus of a western union against aggression.

Catholics Hold Daily Missions

Father Leonard W. Scannell, missionary from Obates of Mary Immaculate and director of propagation of the faith in Columbus, is speaking at special missions in St. Joseph's Catholic church.

The Rev. Father Edward J. Reidy of the local church said Monday the meetings are open to the public where information may be obtained concerning the Catholic faith and its practices. The missions began Sunday and will continue daily through next Sunday.

Father Scannell will be heard daily following 7 and 8 a. m. masses and again at 7:30 p. m. services.

Kiddies Home Report Given

Members of the Kiwanis Club's Children's Home improvement committee and a representative group of Circleville civic leaders heard Miss Jane Stewart, state department of welfare, give a preliminary report on conditions at Pickaway County Children's Home.

Miss Stewart emphasized this was not her final report, but merely a progress chart. The final report is expected about April 1.

Representing groups were Dr. Dave Goldschmidt for Elks and Kiwanis Clubs; Turney Glick, Granges; Mrs. Robert Adkins, Children's Study Club; the Rev. Elisha Kneisley, Ministerial Association; Miss Rose Good, Business and Professional Women's Club; Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commission; and Mrs. Richard Funk, Junior Women's Club.

Fitzpatrick Gets Printing Order

The Pickaway County board of election has awarded the bid for printing of ballots to be used in the May 4 primary elections to the Fitzpatrick Printery, 127 East Main-street.

Fitzpatrick was the only firm to submit a bid, a board official disclosed. Award was made on the offer of $63.25 per thousand ballots. Approximately 16,000 forms have been ordered, the official said.

5 Drivers Pay Fines After Hearings Here

Three speeders, the driver of an overloaded truck, and a reckless driver faced the court of Mayor Thurman I. Miller over the weekend.

Delbert McDonald, of 430 East Union street, was haled into the court Saturday night by Patrolman F. E. Robinette, who said McDonald travelled on U. S. 23 south of Circleville at 70 miles per hour. McDonald was fined $10 and costs.

Another speeder, Laura Gill, of Columbus, was apprehended on U. S. 23 Sunday night by Patrolman Robinette, and was fined $10 and costs by Miller. Robinette said the woman was clocked at 64 miles per hour.

Last of the weekend speeders to appear before the court was Curtis Nickell, of Ypsilanti, Mich., who was fined $15 and costs after haled into the court by Patrolman R. L. Spohn. Spohn said Nickell was speeding 75 miles per hour over U. S. 23.

Robert Ralph Parks, a Greensboro, N. C., truck driver, was fined $15 and costs for reckless operation Sunday night. Patrolman Robinette said Parks crossed the yellow line on U. S. 23.

William Ratliff, driver for the Larson Trucking Co. of Ashland, Ky., paid the court $25 and costs Saturday night for driving an overloaded truck on U. S. 23 south of Circleville by Patrolman C. E. Wells.

trovery. The amount of production today apparently depended on the number "willing."

Most of the "captive" mines of the large steel corporations in the Monongahela Valley are expected to be idle. Robena Mine of H. C. Frick Coke Co., the world's largest mine, will be closed, as will Vesta 5 of Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp.

Lewis has charged the operators have failed to cooperate in setting up the pension plan, which grants $100 monthly stipends to miners over 65 with 20 years service.

The current contract calls for a 10-cent royalty on each ton of coal mined. The money was to go into the pension fund, which now has reached approximately $30,000,000.

Pennsylvania and West Virginia, with a total of 206,000 miners, produce more than half of the nation's bituminous coal. If the walkout becomes nationwide, more than 400,000 miners will be affected.

But a second and more insistent query is: "Will the United States furnish military guarantees of the security of Western Europe?"

AN INDICATION of the importance attached to the conference was the fact that 14 of the countries are represented by their foreign ministers. Only Iceland and Switzerland—both concerned about preserving their neutrality—failed to send their top diplomats.

Five nations — Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg—will take time Wednesday to sign a pact creating the nucleus of a western union against aggression.

Catholics Hold Daily Missions

Father Leonard W. Scannell, missionary from Obates of Mary Immaculate and director of propagation of the faith in Columbus, is speaking at special missions in St. Joseph's Catholic church.

The Rev. Father Edward J. Reidy of the local church said Monday the meetings are open to the public where information may be obtained concerning the Catholic faith and its practices. The missions began Sunday and will continue daily through next Sunday.

Father Scannell will be heard daily following 7 and 8 a. m. masses and again at 7:30 p. m. services.

5 Drivers Pay Fines After Hearings Here

Three speeders, the driver of an overloaded truck, and a reckless driver faced the court of Mayor Thurman I. Miller over the weekend.

Delbert McDonald, of 430 East Union street, was haled into the court Saturday night by Patrolman F. E. Robinette, who said McDonald travelled on U. S. 23 south of Circleville at 70 miles per hour. McDonald was fined $10 and costs.

Another speeder, Laura Gill, of Columbus, was apprehended on U. S. 23 Sunday night by Patrolman Robinette, and was fined $10 and costs by Miller. Robinette said the woman was clocked at 64 miles per hour.

Last of the weekend speeders to appear before the court was Curtis Nickell, of Ypsilanti, Mich., who was fined $15 and costs after haled into the court by Patrolman R. L. Spohn. Spohn said Nickell was speeding 75 miles per hour over U. S. 23.

Robert Ralph Parks, a Greensboro, N. C., truck driver, was fined $15 and costs for reckless operation Sunday night. Patrolman Robinette said Parks crossed the yellow line on U. S. 23.

William Ratliff, driver for the Larson Trucking Co. of Ashland, Ky., paid the court $25 and costs Saturday night for driving an overloaded truck on U. S. 23 south of Circleville by Patrolman C. E. Wells.

troverly. The amount of production today apparently depended on the number "willing."

Most of the "captive" mines of the large steel corporations in the Monongahela Valley are expected to be idle. Robena Mine of H. C. Frick Coke Co., the world's largest mine, will be closed, as will Vesta 5 of Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp.

Lewis has charged the operators have failed to cooperate in setting up the pension plan, which grants $100 monthly stipends to miners over 65 with 20 years service.

The current contract calls for a 10-cent royalty on each ton of coal mined. The money was to go into the pension fund, which now has reached approximately $30,000,000.

Pennsylvania and West Virginia, with a total of 206,000 miners, produce more than half of the nation's bituminous coal. If the walkout becomes nationwide, more than 400,000 miners will be affected.

Mountain Defies Hope Of Rescue

Glacier Blocks Path To Crash

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, March 15—Civil aeronautics officials believed today a remote mountain in Alaska will forever hold the 30 victims of a Northwest Airlines DC-4 transport crash—Alaska's worst.

The weather prevented a helicopter flight yesterday to investigate possibilities of reaching the crash scene, halfway up 16,000-foot Mt. Sanford, the fourth highest peak in Alaska.

Other fliers Saturday brought back word a plane landing is virtually impossible. They said an active glacier would bury the wreckage before a ground party could reach it, and endanger the party itself.

The airliner, with its crew of six men, crashed on a speical chartered flight while bringing 24 crew members of the Tanker Sunset from Shanghai, China, to New York.

IT WAS NWA'S first disaster in a year of flights to the Far East.

The ill-fated liner left Anchorage, 200 miles northwest of Mt. Sanford, early Saturday on a hop to Edmonton, Alta.

The ship crashed into a sheer wall at the head of a narrow box canyon at 11,000 feet elevation and plunged burning to the glacier floor, 3,000 feet below.

Walter Platt, Regional CAA administrator, said he and Dudley Cox, the chief pilot for NWA, flew a small CAA plane as far as they dared into the canyon Saturday.

They reported it is "safe to say" that the tail section is all that is left of the airliner. It is rapidly being pounded into the snow by huge chunks of glacier ice.

Damage Is Set At $20,000

COLUMBUS, March 15—Damage was unofficially estimated at $20,000 in a blaze that swept through three rooms and ripped through the attic and roof of a four-story hotel in Columbus, routing 84 scantily-clad guests.

Fireman Harold Hart, 26, suffered minor burns on his left hand while fighting the blaze discovered about 8:15 a. m. yesterday by Fred Kupfer, 40, in his room on the fourth floor.

Kupfer said he was returning from the bathroom down the hall when he found the dresser in his room ablaze.

Frank Oleniak, in the next room, was awakened by Kupfer's shouts of "Fire," and ran through the hotel warning guests of the danger.

District Fire Chief Robert Hott said about 85 percent of the city's equipment was rushed to the scene. Assistant Fire Chief Walter G. Strickfaden, who set the damage estimate, said water damaged every floor.

Two Crops From New Raspberry

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Distributed by Central Press Association

THERE'S a new everbearing raspberry which gives you large berries in June and again in mid-September. It's called Indian Summer and is disease-resistant and hardy.

Officials of the New York State Agricultural Station hall this newcomer as the first autumn fruiting variety of any merit.

"It is a distinct type, wholly unlike and much superior to known varieties. The quality is good and the season is very early, starting a day or two later than the June variety.

"The fall crop commences in mid-September, continuing until stopped by hard frosts. The bulk of the fall crop is borne in October.

"The plants are above medium to tall, vigorous, upright, hardy, healthy and productive. Fruit is large, uniform, maintaining size fairly well through the season."

Characteristics of the Indian Summer berry is shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Also illustrated is a two-year-old plant which will produce a partial crop the first season.

Tests have shown that the plants of Indian Summer do not become infected with mosaic even when grown near diseased plants and under conditions favorable for transmitting the disease.

It is estimated that 50 plants will provide enough berries for table use, spring and fall, and that 100 plants will supply an average family for table use, canning and freezing.

Hutchins Says No Red Danger

COLUMBUS, March 15—The United States is in no danger from Russia or Communism and we should give up force as a tool of foreign policy in favor of world government.

So said Robert Hutchins, chancellor of the University of Chicago, last night at St. Mary of the Springs college here.

Lashing out at U. S. foreign policy, Hutchins said:

"The day of force can last only a moment or two longer. There are only two possibilities—to use the atomic bomb at once or to create a situation in which nobody can ever use it.

"The most salutary reflection about the Russians in which we can indulge is to imagine how we would feel about the United States if we were Russians."

Officials of the New York State Agricultural Station hail this newcomer as the first autumn fruiting variety of any merit.

"It is a distinct type, wholly unlike and much superior to known varieties. The quality is good and the season is very early, starting a day or two later than the June variety."

"The fall crop commences in mid-September, continuing until stopped by hard frosts. The bulk of the fall crop is borne in October."

"The plants are above medium

to tall, vigorous, upright, hardy, healthy and productive. Fruit is large, uniform, maintaining size fairly well through the season."

Characteristics of the Indian Summer berry is shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Also illustrated is a two-year-old plant which will produce a partial crop the first season.

Tests have shown that the plants of Indian Summer do not become infected with mosaic even when grown near diseased plants and under conditions favorable for transmitting the disease.

It is estimated that 50 plants will provide enough berries for table use, spring and fall, and that 100 plants will supply an average family for table use, canning and freezing.

Hutchins Says No Red Danger

COLUMBUS, March 15—The United States is in no danger from Russia or Communism and we should give up force as a tool of foreign policy in favor of world government.

So said Robert Hutchins, chancellor of the University of Chicago, last night at St. Mary of the Springs college here.

Lashing out at U. S. foreign policy, Hutchins said: "The day of force can last only a moment or two longer. There are only two possibilities—to use the atomic bomb at once or to create a situation in which nobody can ever use it. "The most salutary reflection about the Russians in which we can indulge is to imagine how we would feel about the United States if we were Russians."

"My White Cross Plan" pays $8 for 100 PER DAY plus $5 to $150 For My Surgeon!

41,516 persons are being rushed to hospitals today. This year 1 out of 9 persons in the U.S. will be hospitalized. That means 1 person out of your family or your neighbor's is due to become a hospital case within the next year. And 60% of those cases will require surgery. More than 25,000,000 smart persons have already taken out some form of hospital plan.

No Rate Raises
Rate you start with is one you keep. No raises or assessments on any policy. Even if you start at the 75c children's rate, it does not increase when you become an adult, as long as you stay on your original policy. You are still entitled to your 100 days a year, Surgical Fees, Operating Room, Anesthetic and other "extras".

We Pay Your Hospital, Your Doctor or YOU!
It's "your money" and subject to your orders. You just tell us where to send your check.

ECONOMY COMMISSION

TWELVE men, six Republicans and six Democrats, are studying how to increase government efficiency, reduce the number of federal agencies, cut taxes. Known as the Hoover Commission because the former President heads it, the commission came into being through a law backed by both parties.

Congress is aware of Washington's agency expansion, its paralyzing duplication and staggering cost. To avoid the political bias and stalemate of previous investigating bodies, this commission's members were appointed equally by the President and speakers of both houses, in equal ratio from Congress, the executive branch and civilian ranks.

There are more than 2,500 federal bureaus, many over-staffed. Overappings of activities are indicated by the following: 29 lend money; four examine banks; 34 buy land; 12 plan houses; 20 deal with construction and materials; 65 gather statistics. Congress has been told that if government affairs were in order, from seven to ten billion dollars could be saved in the annual over-all cost of federal business. This balance would be more than enough to meet the needs of a Marshall Plan, with a good bit left over for debt retirement and tax reduction.

The Hoover Commission is not to report until 1949, when this year's elections will be safely over. Therefore any recommended reorganization and economies will be a long time coming, but the tax-wary, bureau-burdened public is heartened to learn that a beginning at least has been made toward system and thrift in national affairs.

In Arabic countries, reports a returned traveler, it is a deadly insult for a dinner guest to eat with his left hand. Surely some Arabs must be born left-handed. What happens to them? Are all the south paws strangled at birth? We'd certainly hate to lose ours!

Nine years ago Czechoslovakia fell to Hitler at the end of Winter, and war came before Autumn. Hitler of course resorted to open conquest by an army. The Russian method is more subtle. Will it provoke the same reaction?

Sure Americans are tough! One fellow the other day was buried half an hour under a ton of coal and emerged with merely a scratch on his nose.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Big and gay was Jan Masaryk. A cosmopolitan, half-American by birth, he was as much at home in New York as in London or his own Prague. He and Eduard Benes were the authors of their country's Janus-faced policy—the policy of looking East and West simultaneously.

And now he is dead. It will long be argued how he came to die so suddenly at the age of 61. We do know that it was through a window, but not whether he jumped out of that window the way Japanese commit hara-kiri to save their honor and for the glory of their race, or whether he was thrown out of the window by murderous opponents. We do not know whether he was killed before he was thrown from the window or whether that was left to the inevitable—a word the Marxists love.

At any rate, he is dead. Jan goes to his Maker to ask forgiveness for his sins, for he believed that he could save his country by appeasement and he has lost his country by appeasement—lost it perhaps irrevocably. When he became conscious of Czechoslovakia's fate, what could he do? To oppose Stalin would mean that he would be sent to some such place as Yakutsk where he could sit in servitude with other so-called democrats to discuss what might have happened had they been as wise before as after the treachery. Such a life was not for Jan Masaryk.

The alternative was to be another Tito or Dimitrov, a Quisling of a foreign power, a slave, a liar, a scoundrel, a thief of his own people's bread. That Jan Masaryk could not do. And so he died.

What has happened to Jan Masaryk may happen to the Pope after April 18. For should Togliatti take Italy, what greater prize could Stalin have than the Holy Father? That would be proof that he indeed is a god-man. What a day it would be when the Hammer and Sickle fly over the Vatican and the paintings of Sistine Chapel are shipped to Russia as booty! That is the next step—and the world is quiet about it.

And what about our own Quislings who have discovered a charm in appeasement. Henry Wallace and his followers, sincere or opportunistic, Communist slaves or misguided appeasers, wise men who believe in myths or morons who follow voices—they are like the Jan Masaryks of Czechoslovakia who play with the nation's life on the off-chance that their gamble will not bring to it a death by violence and shame.

When I see men and women wearing big blue buttons with the name, Wallace, across it, I cannot help but wonder how long it will be before that blue is changed to red, before the dupes are turned into slaves.

Jan Masaryk could answer that question.

His death answers that question. How many men have been killed for their beliefs since the Oriental despot from the Caucasus sat himself on Ivan the Terrible's throne? Stalin had killed, by one process or another, nearly all the old Bolsheviks, including his peer and Lenin's associate, Leon Trotsky.

Symptoms of St. Vitus Dance

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
CHOREA or St. Vitus dance is one of the mysterious ailments of the nervous system which seems to attack children almost exclusively. Starting with restlessness and the inability to sit still, it usually goes on until it has the child twitching and jerking almost constantly. These spasms or contractions of the muscles are entirely out of the child's control and may become so severe as to make it impossible for him to feed himself or to talk properly. It is scarcely any wonder that it often changes an obedient, happy child into one that is cross and irritable.

Rheumatic Fever
It is believed that this disorder may come from the same cause as rheumatic fever, a condition in which there are pain and swelling in the joints, together with more or less severe heart damage. And it is true that many children who have rheumatic fever also develop chorea. It has recently been suggested, however, that in many cases chorea or St. Vitus dance occurs alone and has, in these instances, no relation to rheumatic fever.

There is a test known as the sedimentation test, which helps to tell when infections of any sort are present in the body. This test is carried out by determining how rapidly the blood cells settle out of the blood, in a very small tube. If the child with chorea has a normal sedimentation rate and the heart is not affected, it is thought that the condition is not due to the same cause as rheumatic fever.

Over one-half of more than 100 children with chorea who were studied between 1934 and 1947 had no evidence of rheumatic infection.

Other Signs Noted
On the other hand, when the sedimentation rate is increased in a child with chorea, active rheumatic fever is usually found to be present. Other signs of acute rheumatic fever were noted in eight out of ten of the children who had a high sedimentation rate, and almost two-thirds of these eventually had some involvement of the heart.

It is interesting to note that those children who developed chorea without rheumatic fever suffered most severely from the emotional disturbances and changes in disposition which seem to be a part of this disorder. Willfulness, outbreaks of temper, and odd behavior of all sorts were far more noticeable in this group than in those where chorea accompanied rheumatic fever. On the other hand, there is a greater tendency for the chorea to recur in the rheumatic group.

Cause Unknown

Though much research on the subject has been done, we still do not know the cause either for rheumatic fever or for chorea, or the exact relationship between them. It may be that this new view of chorea as something quite apart from rheumatic fever will give medical scientists a new clue to the cause of both of these afflictions of childhood.

Chorea usually can be cleared up with such methods as the fever treatment, or the injection of typhoid vaccine to produce fever attacks. Of course, complete rest is important, and sedatives or quieting drugs also may be useful.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A Reader: I am a high school boy of fifteen, five feet, four inches tall. I come from a short family. Is there any way I could add a few inches to my height?

Answer: Many doctors employ hormone injections to increase the height of very young children. At your age these injections would be worthless. Some boys, however, continue growing until they are 17 years of age. The important thing to remember is that success in life depends on what you do, what you make of yourself, and not on your height or physical appearance.

him down in the little address book and she called him regularly every couple of months to ask him how things were going and did he have a dime to spare, or maybe five bucks.

Betty tried press-agency for a while and got by, but she wasn't very good at it and she got a little tired of the p. a.'s making passes at her, so she said the hell with that and began posing in bathing suit pictures for the South American trade.

The work is easy and pays well and if you don't mind the idea of a half-doz guys passing your photo around with snickers and lecherous grins, you can pay the rent for a while with it.

It went that way for a couple of years; always Betty would go back to the bathing suit pictures when the rent came due. She tried night club photography for a while but wasn't very good at that, either, although by the time she got around to that her nerves seemed to be getting a little on edge and she couldn't keep her temper in check too well and she cried easily.

Betty was an associate editor in a book-publishing house for about three days; Lord knows how she got that one, and of course she was in water away over her head and it never lasted. She had a kind of hysterical distrust of men and if she had a few drinks she was apt to tell you how lousy they all were and how they wouldn't let a girl alone.

I suppose she had a point there; you have to be pretty level-headed to live alone in this town and meet men on their own ground and still have any respect left for them.

BETTY HAD A WAY OF DROPPING OUT of sight every few months and I never quite knew where she went, but then she would show up again, thinner and more serious than ever about finding a place for her talent in New York.

The only thing was, she drank more heavily with each passing week; I suppose it was inevitable, since nothing broke right for her and she wasn't the kind who could take too many reverses without something happening.

Her black hair got a little stringier and she got thick around the waist and the first thing you knew she was 30 and the sands were beginning to run out in the hour glass a little faster.

Maybe if you have read this far you expect the story to end with death some way—the side of a cheap little apartment blown out and, as the police reports say, "four jets on the kitchen range were turned on"—but it doesn't.

It came up to date a little while ago when I picked up a morning paper and learned that Betty had been thrown into the cooler for getting into a fight with a hostess in a cheap little downtown cafe—one of those hair-pulling, beer-inspired brawls in which the women call each other tarts and try to yank each other's dresses off.

That is about all there is to it. The charges were dismissed the next day, and for all I know Betty is lying on a wrinkled bed in a damp little room somewhere in the Fifties planning what move to make next and which of her talents to concentrate on to become a success, the way she has for four years now.

The thing is, she has no talents, and I am just sitting here wondering how many more there are like her in my New York.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

ON SATURDAY afternoon Kit

met Aunt Chris at the station in New York. A tall, dignified woman in a dark frock, short white hair tucked beneath a bright red sailor hat, she embraced Kit with gusto.

An ugly woman with her broad flat nose and wide mouth, Christina Helm grew rightfully indignant when reminded that she had sacrificed her own personal happiness in order to rear someone else's child. Her usual retort was, "I was an old maid when I took Kit to raise." Few people she knew now remembered the young man who had gone away with Chris's promise to marry him and who married someone else. No martyr, Christina Helm enjoyed her life to the utmost, was indispensable to her boss and frequently gave thanks to the brave women who had preceded her, who had made it possible for women to go about freely without men. Her lost youth of caring for a cross, invalid father and seeing the only man she had ever loved sever himself forever from her with a brief note she did not deny. The late years were the best years, she said frequently, and Kit's happiness her chief interest.

"You're looking fine, child," she said, holding Kit away at arm's length. Then she laughed. "You can't see anything but my red hat, can you? I thought it would call attention away from the rest of me."

"I'm so glad to see you, Aunt Chris. I'm in an awfully strange world here..."

"People over the world are pretty much the same, Kit. It's just that you haven't met many of them. Well, where do we go from here?"

They taxied crosstown to the Hotel George Washington. While Aunt Chris freshened herself Kit ordered tea.

"Your friends at home have been calling you," Aunt Chris took the cup from Kit. "I gave them your address and you" probably be hearing from some of them. It will be up to you, my dear, to discover the ones who won't care what happened that night. They were astounded when I told them about your job. They think you are very lucky indeed. Are you lucky, Kit?"

Kit put down the cup. Funny, how remote that other life seemed in just a few weeks. Funny, too, that of all that had happened to her, all that she could think of now was that one evening with Kirk and the quietness and wonder of knowing that she loved him...

She shook her head. She looked very young to Aunt Chris in the simple navy frock with the white organdy collar. "I don't know, I've never met people like them before. I've never known anyone before, with the exception of Jane, who set out deliberately to hurt you. I'm—I'm feeling my way like someone who can see only a little..."

"Suppose you tell me about it," Kit began at the moment Ruth Fallon had sent for her. The tea was cold and the light in the room had shifted when she paused.

Aunt Chris leaned back in the soft chair and took a deep breath. "You don't need to stay, Kit."

"But I'm going to stay. Besides the money, I'd be a quitter if I left. I'd be someone who couldn't take it. More than that, Aunt Chris, I want to know what's going to happen to them. I shouldn't care but I do. And Mike, too. He covers up the real Mike with his grin."

Looking out the window, Aunt Chris nodded. "Very well. Stay. How do you feel about your parents now, Kit? Are you willing to let sleeping dogs..."

"No." The answer was emphatic and clear. "No. Someday I'm going to find out about them. Someday I'm going to know why my father did it and what sort of person he was and what happened to him before he died. I'll never have any real peace until I know."

Aunt Chris smiled kindly. "And in the meantime, dear, I'm going to wash my face and we're going out to a good dinner and to the theatre. How is that?" Rising, she looked down on Kit. "I'm not flippant, dear. I'm old and wise and ugly. It's much clearer to me than it is to you. You will have to learn the clearness and live with the darkness until you do."

The next afternoon, as she walked to her own train she felt small and lonely again and a little frightened.

Kit scarcely noticed either the clear weather or the swarms of people who came to the house the following week. Plans for Tracy's party consumed her days and she was glad enough at night to go to bed and fall asleep over a book.

Two letters came from friends in Washington, who were, she suspected, more interested in being entertained in New York than in spending the weekend with her.

Between her work she found time to examine her best evening frock, a white crepe that Aunt Chris had given her last Christmas, and decided to wear it with Mike's orchids. When she saw Tracy that week, the latter was rushed and businesslike. Tony and Anita she did not encounter at all. Once, when she glanced down at the crowded pool and saw Kirk, she looked quickly back at the typewriter. So futile and wasted, the quiet, wonderful feeling, she thought. Thus the week went quickly.

On Saturday morning Tracy gave her a rare word of praise. "You've handled this very well, Kit. No one would ever suspect you were a novice at this sort of thing."

"I hope it will be a very successful party."

"They usually are. And by the way, Mike is coming up for dinner tonight. I'd like you to join us. There'll be just six for dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Merryman, Mr. Griswold, Mike, you and I."

"Thank you."

"Oh, it's all right. And—this may be personal, but have you anything suitable to wear?"

"I was going to wear a white crepe dinner dress. It isn't very formal but..."

"It doesn't matter about that. Everyone's covered up these days. White crepe? Very becoming with your sunburn, I should say." She waved her hand, a characteristic gesture. "That's all. And I don't want to be disturbed today. I simply must get some rest or I'll collapse. I can go to sleep sitting in a chair. If anything comes up, attend to it. Use your judgment."

Later Mrs. McIntyre brought Mike's orchids to Kit's room. She paused a few moments to tell her the life story of the pale, delicate flowers. When Mrs. McIntyre left, Kit glanced at the card on which Mike had scribbled. "Wear 'em for me." Dear Mike, so careless of himself, so thoughtful of others. Kit thought. I'd be scared about tonight if Mike were not going to be with me.

She dressed with weak, cold hands not thinking of Mike but of Kirk sitting across the table from her. Silly, stupid, to prize so dearly merely the glimpse of a man. Silly, stupid to hope for anything. But the hope was there. It would not go away. It ignored futility and Tracy's insinuations. Hope like a mischievous little imp danced through her mind while she slipped into the white sheath of a dress. She fastened Mike's orchids on her left shoulder. Started she realized that was not Kit Marshall. That was the girl Kirk would see tonight, a tanned girl in white, hair shining, skin aglow. To the reflection she murmured, The storybooks are wrong. A man doesn't have to do anything heroic for you to love him. It isn't the way Kirk looks—though he is tall and fair and his eyes the bluest you've ever seen. Not that. It's the feeling you have about him that makes you sure, a feeling that couldn't happen twice...

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—It was about four years ago, I guess, that Betty came to New York. She came from St. Louis but that didn't mean too much, for she had been in three or four other cities in the midwest before that and St. Louis just had happened to be the last. She was about 27, tall and dark-haired and on the full-blown side, and if she wasn't good-looking she was at least attractive in a rough way, the kind of girl you might see floating around Scollay Square in Boston. I guess that was the big hitch right there. If she had been satisfied to become a waitress in a one-arm joint or a strip-teaser, she'd have gotten along all right and maybe married some cab driver or bartender. I do not say that derisively, but guys like that usually don't want mental giants for wives, and in a number of other ways—say size, shape and disposition—Betty was all right.

The big hitch was that Betty thought she had talent. She never was quite sure which spillway that talent would explode over. She could play a little piano with a lot of left-hand faking, and there were times when she thought she was going to be the next sensation of the intimate cafes, the next Hildegard or Lena Horne.

Betty wrote a handful of songs and I guess that was the thing she could do best. They weren't good, but they were passable and they were cleaner and rhymed a lot better than most of the semipro material you hear in the two-bit beer joints in the Forties with delusions of grandeur.

Our girl could write a little but not very well and she had spent a couple of months as a copy girl on a newspaper out in Duluth or Toledo or some place. I think that was what she wanted to be most—a newspaperwoman, or a magazine writer of some kind—somebody who would be pointed to and described as an intellectual.

THE FIRST FEW MONTHS BETTY WAS IN TOWN she hit all the newspaper offices and got nowhere, but she met a lot of stray newspapermen, some of them in coffee pots next door to the office, or in nearby bars like Nick's down in Greenwich street or McCarthy's on Second avenue, and she clung grimly to these associations.

Once she met a newspaperman she never forgot him and she put

The Hoover Commission is not to report until 1949, when this year's elections will be safely over. Therefore any recommended reorganization and economies will be a long time coming, but the tax-weary, bureau-burdened public is heartened to learn that a beginning at least has been made toward system and thrift in national affairs.

In Arabic countries, reports a returned traveler, it is a deadly insult for a dinner guest to eat with his left hand. Surely some Arabs must be born left-handed. What happens to them? Are all the southpaws strangled at birth? We'd certainly hate to lose ours!

Nine years ago Czechoslovakia fell to Hitler at the end of Winter, and war came before Autumn. Hitler of course resorted to open conquest by an army. The Russian method is more subtle. Will it provoke the same reaction?

Sure Americans are tough! One fellow the other day was buried half an hour under a ton of coal and emerged with merely a scratch on his nose.

NEW YORK—It was about four years ago, I guess, that Betty came to New York. She came from St. Louis but that didn't mean too much, for she had been in three or four other cities in the Midwest before that and St. Louis just had happened to be the last. She was about 27, tall and dark-haired and on the full-blown side, and if she wasn't good-looking she was at least attractive in a rough way, the kind of girl you might see floating around Scollay Square in Boston. I guess that was the big hitch right there. If she had been satisfied to become a waitress in a one-arm joint or a strip-teaser, she'd have gotten along all right and maybe married some cab driver or bartender. I do not say that derisively, but guys like that usually don't want mental giants for wives, and in a number of other ways—say size, shape and disposition—Betty was all right.

The big hitch was that Betty thought she had talent. She never was quite sure which spillover that talent would explode over. She could play a little piano with a lot of left-hand faking, and there were times when she thought she was going to be the next sensation of the intimate cafes, the next Hildegarde or Lena Horne.

Betty wrote a handful of songs and I guess that was the thing she could do best. They weren't good, but they were passable and they were cleaner and rhymed a lot better than most of the semi-pro material you hear in the two-bit beer joints in the Forties with delusions of grandeur.

Our girl could write a little but not very well and she had spent a couple of months as a copy girl on a newspaper out in Duluth or Toledo or some place. I think that was what she wanted to be most—a newspaperwoman, or a magazine writer of some kind—somebody who would be pointed to and described as an intellectual.

THE FIRST FEW MONTHS BETTY WAS IN TOWN she hit all the newspaper offices and got nowhere, but she met a lot of stray newspapermen, some of them in coffee pots next door to the office, or in nearby bars like Nick's down in Greenwich street or McCarthy's on Second avenue, and she clung grimly to these associations.

Once she met a newspaperman she never forgot him and she put

These Days

Big and gay was Jan Masaryk. A cosmopolitan, half-American by birth, he was as much at home in New York as in London or his own Prague. He and Eduard Benes were the authors of their country's Janus-faced policy—the policy of looking East and West simultaneously.

And now he is dead. It will long be argued how he came to die so suddenly at the age of 61. We do know that it was through a window, but not whether he jumped out of that window the way Japanese commit hara-kiri to save their honor and for the glory of their race, or whether he was thrown out of the window by murderous opponents. We do not know whether he was killed before he was thrown from the window or whether that was left to the inevitable—a word the Marxists love.

At any rate, he is dead. Jan goes to his Maker to ask forgiveness for his sins, for he believed that he could save his country by appeasement and he has lost his country by appeasement—lost it perhaps irrevocably. When he became conscious of Czechoslovakia's fate, what could he do? To oppose Stalin would mean that he would be sent to some such place as Yakutsk where he could sit in servitude with other so-called democrats to discuss what might have happened had they been as wise before as after the treachery. Such a life was not for Jan Masaryk.

The alternative was to be another Tito or Dimitrov, a Quisling of a foreign power, a slave, a liar, a scoundrel, a thief of his own people's bread. That Jan Masaryk could not do. And so he died.

What has happened to Jan Masaryk may happen to the Pope after April 18. For should Togliatti take Italy, what greater prize could Stalin have than the Holy Father? That would be proof that he indeed is a god-man. What a day it would be when the Hammer and Sickle fly over the Vatican and the paintings of Sistine Chapel are shipped to Russia as booty! That is the next step—and the world is quiet about it.

And what about our own Quislings who have discovered a charm in appeasement. Henry Wallace and his followers, sincere or opportunistic, Communist slaves or misguided appeasers, wise men who believe in myths or morons who follow voices—they are like the Jan Masaryks of Czechoslovakia who play with the nation's life on the off-chance that their gamble will not bring to it a death by violence and shame.

When I see men and women wearing big blue buttons with the name, Wallace, across it, I cannot help but wonder how long it will be before that blue is changed to red, before the dupes are turned into slaves.

Jan Masaryk could answer that question.

His death answers that question. How many men have been killed for their beliefs since the Oriental despot from the Caucasus sat himself on Ivan the Terrible's throne? Stalin had killed, by one process or another, nearly all the old Bolsheviks, including his peer and Lenin's associate, Leon Trotsky.

Symptoms of St. Vitus Dance

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
CHOREA or St. Vitus dance is one of the mysterious ailments of the nervous system which seems to attack children almost exclusively. Starting with restlessness and the inability to sit still, it usually goes on until it has the child twitching and jerking almost constantly. These spasms or contractions of the muscles are entirely out of the child's control and may become so severe as to make it impossible for him to feed himself or to talk properly. It is scarcely any wonder that it often changes an obedient, happy child into one that is cross and irritable.

Rheumatic Fever
It is believed that this disorder may come from the same cause as rheumatic fever, a condition in which there are pain and swelling in the joints, together with more or less severe heart damage. And it is true that many children who have rheumatic fever also develop chorea. It has recently been suggested, however, that in many cases chorea or St. Vitus dance occurs alone and has, in these instances, no relation to rheumatic fever. There is a test known as the sedimentation test, which helps to tell when infections of any sort are present in the body. This test is carried out by determining how rapidly the blood cells settle out of the blood, in a very small tube. If the child with chorea has a normal sedimentation rate and the heart is not affected, it is thought that the condition is not due to the same cause as rheumatic fever. Over one-half of more than 100 children with chorea who were studied between 1934 and 1947 had no evidence of rheumatic infection.

Other Signs Noted
On the other hand, when the sedimentation rate is increased in a child with chorea, active rheumatic fever is usually found to be present. Other signs of acute rheumatic fever were noted in eight out of ten of the children who had a high sedimentation rate, and almost two-thirds of these eventually had some involvement of the heart. It is interesting to note that those children who developed chorea without rheumatic fever suffered most severely from the emotional disturbances and changes in disposition which seem to be a part of this disorder. Wifeliness, outbreaks of temper, and odd behavior of all sorts were far more noticeable in this group than in those where chorea accompanied rheumatic fever. On the other hand, there is a greater tendency for the chorea to recur in the rheumatic group.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
A Reader: I am a high school boy of fifteen, five feet, four inches tall. I come from a short family. Is there any way I could add a few inches to my height?
Answer: Many doctors employ hormone injections to increase the height of very young children. At your age these injections would be worthless. Some boys, however, continue growing until they are 17 years of age. The important thing to remember is that success in life depends on what you do, what you make of yourself, and not on your height or physical appearance.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN
ON SATURDAY afternoon Kit met Aunt Chris at the station in New York. A tall, dignified woman in a dark frock, short white hair tucked beneath a bright red sailor hat, she embraced Kit with gusto. An ugly woman with her broad flat nose and wide mouth, Christina Heim grew rightfully indignant when reminded that she had sacrificed her own personal happiness in order to rear someone else's child. Her usual retort was, "I was an old maid when I took Kit to raise." Few people she knew now remembered the young man who had gone away with Chris's promise to marry him and who married someone else. No martyr, Christina Heim enjoyed her life to the utmost, was indispensable to her boss and frequently gave thanks to the brave women who had preceded her, who had made it possible for women to go about freely without men. Her lost youth of caring for a cross, invalid father and seeing the only man she had ever loved sever himself forever from her with a brief note she did not decay. The late years were the best years, she said frequently, and Kit's happiness her chief interest.

"You're looking fine, child," she said, holding Kit away at arm's length. Then she laughed. "You can't see anything but my red hat, can you? I thought it would call attention away from the rest of me."

"I'm so glad to see you, Aunt Chris. I'm in an awfully strange world here . . ."

"People over the world are pretty much the same, Kit. It's just that you haven't met many of them. Well, where do we go from here?"

They taxied crocstown to the Hotel George Washington. While Aunt Chris freshened herself Kit ordered tea.

"Your friends at home have been calling you," Aunt Chris took the cup from Kit. "I gave them your address and you" probably be hearing from some of them. It will be up to you, my dear, to discover the ones who won't care what happened that night. They were as-tounded when I told them about your job. They think you are very lucky indeed. Are you lucky, Kit?"

Kit put down the cup. Funny, how remote that other life seemed in just a few weeks. Funny, too, that of all that had happened to her, all that she could think of now was that one evening with Kirk and the quietness and wonder of knowing that she loved him . . .

She shook her head. She looked very young to Aunt Chris in the simple navy frock with the white organdy collar. "I don't know, I've gummed flaps of their envelopes with peppermint may have started something that could have endless possibilities. Something glue has been added!"

The New Lick is now running in competition to the New Look.

Edith Toliver Becomes
Bride Of James Brown
Sunday Afternoon

Vows Exchanged
In Columbus Church

Impressive nuptial rites Sunday afternoon united Edith Toliver and James Link Brown in marriage. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manford C. Toliver of Ashville while her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Brown from near Groveport.

The Rev. Harry G. Ford officiated at 3:30 p. m. in Tenth Avenue Baptist church in Columbus before an altar adorned in bouquets of white stock and greenery, flanked by seven branched candelabra and palms.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride repeated her vows in a candlelight satin gown with a fitted bodice encrusted in a floral design of beads and seed pearls and a bouffant skirt cascading over a satin hoop terminating into a chapel train. The sweetheart necklace was edged in a corresponding bead design and the long tight fitted sleeves formed points over her hands.

Her fingertip veil of English illusion was held in place by a satin coronet faced with imported orange blossoms. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom. She carried a white prayer book topped with white camellias and white hyacinth bells.

Miss Marjorie Evans from Washington D. C. was her only attendant. She wore a powder blue marquisette over taffeta frock, fashioned with a faillie bodice and an off-the-shoulder yoke. Deep folds of the fabric formed a bustle in the back of the bouffant skirt. She wore a corresponding taffeta Mary Queen of Scots coronet and carried a colonial bouquet of violets, centered with pink rose buds and outlined in pink sweet-peas.

Wayne Brown from the Groveport community, served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Neal Brown of Madison township, brother of the bridegroom, and Walter Osborn of Columbus.

Nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Allen McMarrigal and Mrs. Walter Osborn of Columbus.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents were hosts at a reception. Mrs. Toliver received her guests in aqua crepe dress with a corsage of pink carnations and rose buds pinned at her shoulder. Mrs. Brown, mother of the bridegroom, was dressed in a printed keepe. Her flowers were white rose buds and carnations.

When the new Mr. and Mrs. Brown left for an extended trip through the South, the bride had changed to a two piece navy-blue dress with accents of pink faillie and corresponding accessories. Completing her costume she wore the camellias from her bridal bouquet.

The bride attended Morehead State Teacher college and received a degree from Kentucky Wesleyan college. She taught school at Mapleton school in her former home in Mt. Sterling, and was very active in civic and social affairs of that city. During the war she was affiliated with the office of inter-affairs in Washington D. C.

The bridegroom was graduated by Walnut township high school. He served four years in the U. S. Army and received the Purple Heart. Now he is engaged in farming near Groveport where they will make their home.

Luther Leaguers Set Date For April Play

Bob Morgan, president, was in charge of the monthly meeting of Luther Leaguers Sunday evening in the parish house of Trinity Lutheran church. Ruth Troutman lead the group in devotions.

Members were chosen to prepare posters for the play "The Kid Himself" which will be sponsored and presented by the League on April 1 and 2. Plans were laid for the annual Scioto-Hocking federation meeting, April 25, when the local Leaguers will be hosts. Secretarial report was read by Edward Wolfe.

The program consisted of a movie "This Amazing America" and a two-act minstrel. Ronald Melvin was manager of the play enacted by Garry Brown and Dickie Rhoades.

Mary Carolyn Weller, chairman, was assisted in serving lunch by Peggy Andrews, Ronald List, Phyllis Weller and Norma Howard. Refreshments were served in gaily decorated "Easter nests" at tables centered by burning tapers and ferns.

Combined Meet Slated In Parish House

Meeting scheduled by members of Women's Auxiliary of St. Philip's Episcopal church for Wednesday afternoon has been cancelled. They will join with the congregation of the church for its covered-dish supper at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday in the parish house and present a program following the meal.

Mrs. Howard P. Stallman from Bexley, who is treasurer of the thank offering diocese of Southern Ohio, will be guest speaker. She will be accompanied by a Chinese Episcopal clergyman who will answer questions pertaining to China.

Helen M. Lawson will speak on "Conservation".

The April Soliqua Club meeting will be with Mrs. Frank Grice. Mrs. Jennie Russell will be assisting hostess.

Family Honors Mrs. Eva Hedges

The birthday anniversary of Mrs. Eva Hedges, who will be 85 on St. Patrick's Day, was celebrated by members of her family at a dinner Sunday in her home in Tarlton.

Among those who assisted in marking Mrs. Hedges' natal anniversary were Mr. and Mrs. George Ratcliff and Patricia, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Barnes and Susie, Jack Hedges, Miss Joan Hopper, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hedges and Dick and Jean and Mr. and Mrs. Clydus Fausnaugh. Gilbert Hedges, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Dresbach, Mrs. Lettie Foust, Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas and daughter, Rita, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hedges and Billie, Darrel and Dean, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hedges, Miss Patty Mack, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Hedges, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kinsler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoummel, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Root, Frank Boyer and David Fagley.

Mary Carolyn Weller, chairman, was assisted in serving lunch by Peggy Andrews, Ronald List, Phyllis Weller and Norma Howard. Refreshments were served in gaily decorated "Easter nests" at tables centered by burning tapers and ferns.

Out-Of-Town Guests Feted

John La Master from Columbus was the weekend guest of his sisters, Mrs. Charles Ater and Mrs. Nannie V. Berry, in their homes in Circleville. Saturday guests with Mrs. Beery were Mr. and Mrs. Reed Brown of Canal Winchester, and Mrs. Myrta Leist from Williamsport. Mrs. Herman Thompson, and son, Phillip, and Mrs. A. E. Thompson of Columbus and Mr. and Mrs. Dano Estell from near Amanda were Sunday guests of Mrs. Beery.

Obituary

Anna McCoy, daughter of William and Martha Rector Owens, was born in Circleville, Ohio, March 15, 1869 and died at her late home in Circleville, Ohio, March 15, 1948, aged 78 years, 11 months and 11 days.

She was one of eleven children, five of whom survive. Mrs. Emma Decker, Springfield, Ohio; Mrs. Armina Cupp and Fred Owens, Wayne Twp.; Mrs. Susan Lape and William Owens, Circleville, Ohio.

She was twice married: first to Harry E. Coffland and to them one son, Leonard E. Coffland, Circleville, Ohio.

August 1907 she was married to Marcus Pettit whom she leaves to mourn her loss; also one son, six grandchildren, two great grandchildren, nephews, nieces and a host of friends and neighbors by whom she was lovingly called "Mom Pettit."

She was a member of the Union Grove M. E. Church, Wayne Twp., until the church was abandoned, then she attended various churches in Circleville until her health failed. Her passing from among us will leave a vacancy that can never be replaced.

We miss you from our home. We miss you from your place. A shadow over our lives is cast. We miss the sunshine of your face. We miss your kind and willing hand. Your home and earnest care. Our home is dark without you. We miss you from everywhere.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Coffland and family.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our most sincere and heartfelt thanks to all our friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy during the illness and death of our beloved wife and mother. For all the lovely flowers, and comforting words of Rev. Clarence Swearingen, also the singers, and to the DeWitt funeral home for their courteous treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Coffland and family.

West easily read his partner as being fairly well loaded in spades, so led the 9 of that suit to avoid leading into South's tenaces in hearts and the minors.

It was easy for South also to do some card-reading on his own assets, counting up eight positive tricks with two in spades, four in clubs and one each in the red suits. Looking for the spot to develop the requisite ninth trick, he saw the chance for a heart finesse and didn't even pay any attention to those "low honors" below the diamond A.

Feeling that his contract depended on the heart finesse, he won the opening lead in the dummy with the spade A, and then finessed the heart Q, which lost to the K. West repeated spades with his 3, the K winning. Hoping now for a 3-3 division of the missing six hearts, South led to the A and laid down the 7, which the J won. West also cashed the 7, then led his club 9 because he properly disliked pitching away from his diamond Q.

South got that trick, but had to lead diamonds from his own hand, so was set.

The declarer's best play was to win the spade lead in dummy and finesse the diamond J. When in again he should have finessed the diamond 10. To win his ninth trick that way required any one of three situations to exist—the K with East, the Q with East or both the K and Q there. One set-up only could beat that play—both the K and Q with West, unlikely to the tune of 3 to 1.

200 Youngsters To Appear In County Musical Festival

Program Set For Thursday

Orchestra, Vocal Numbers Booked

Pickaway County's annual school music festival is to be presented Thursday evening in the Jackson Township high school auditorium with nearly 200 county youths joining to give a two-part program.

The first part of the program is to be composed of three orchestral selections under the direction of Fred Brobst, Ashville instrumental music instructor.

"Sobre Las Solas," by Serey, is to be the first orchestral selection, followed by "Petite de Ballet," by Gluck. Last on the instrumental portion of the affair will be Isaac's "Russian Chorale and Overture."

Part two of the program features 17 selections, more than half of which are to be solos and ensemble offerings, all under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Penney, Monroe Township music instructor.

ANNETTE THOMAS is to present the first selection, a piano solo, "Prelude." Miss Thomas will be the accompanist for the second portion of the festival.

"Behold The Savior of Mankind," a chorus presentation, will follow.

Mary Burgett is featured in the next spot with an alto solo, "It was not an Open Enemy."

The chorus is to be heard on the next number, "What Is This That He Saith," followed by a tenor and bass solo by Wayne Rhoades and Jerry Rator on "And As They Did Eat."

Another chorus number, "O Sacred Head" follows, and an alto ensemble, made up of Mary Fudge, Mary Krimmel, Vera Rhoades, Marianne Neff and Betty Hart, will sing "I Was A Derision To All My People."

The chorus again takes over on "Hail! King of The Jews" for the next selection.

Mary Ellen Grabill is featured in an alto solo for the next number, "O Consider This," followed by a bass solo by Dave Ballard, "Now From The Sixth Hour" and "Lo! At Noon 'Tis Sudden Night" by the chorus.

A soprano ensemble, composed of Faye Johnson, Marilyn Miller and Lois Defenbaugh, will be heard in "He Was Wounded For Our Transgressions."

"GOD SO LOVED The World" by the chorus follows, and an

Woman Dies Fighting Fire

OBERLIN, March 15—A 79-year-old Oberlin woman died yesterday in attempting to beat out a fire in the basement of her home after she had routed four of her tenants.

The victim, Mrs. Emma Persons, discovered the fire and quickly raced upstairs to warn the roomers. All four escaped unharmed. Mrs. Persons then returned to the basement through heavy smoke to battle the fire.

Firemen were thwarted for two hours by the dense smoke, but finally succeeded in reaching Mrs. Persons. She died in Allen Memorial hospital a short time after her rescue.

Franklin Costs Said Doubled

COLUMBUS, March 15 — Citizens Research, Inc., of Columbus, announced to its members today that it cost an all-time high of $9,311,835 to operate Franklin County last year—double the 1943 cost and 23 percent more than in 1946.

Citizens Research placed responsibility for the rising costs on "inflated costs of materials, services, construction and equipment," and "payments on new drain sewers; site purchases and preliminary engineering work for new buildings and other construction, and veterans housing."

alto solo by Martha Sharrett "Then Came Joseph and Took Away The Body."

"As It Began At Dawn," a soprano ensemble composed of Rosemary Mace, Betty Williams and Barbara Smith, is followed by a baritone solo "I Am He That Liveth" by Hewitt Harmond.

The selection, "The Strife Is O'er, Alleluia" by the chorus, rounds out the program.

Festival officials say the program, which will start about 8:15 p. m., will last an hour and 15 minutes.

The ancient Druids believed that mistletoe kept away witches, and people once paid large sums for pieces of the parasite plant to wear around their necks.

Population Hike To Boost U.S. Requirements

CLEVELAND, March 15—A zooming population rate in the United States means that this country will have to have more of everything to maintain its standard of living in the 1950s.

This prediction was made today by the monthly business bulletin of the Cleveland Trust Co.

The report stated that "the nation is experiencing a population boom. The 1947 population estimate (July 1) of 144,002,000 represents a gain of nearly three millions over 1946, or the largest annual increase in our history."

The result has been, the bulletin continued, that in many cities, existing facilities have been placed under a severe strain. The bulletin added:

"Within the next 10 years, school enrollment alone will probably be one-third larger than in 1940."

The bulletin pointed out that business activity during November, December and January has been on a "lofty plateau," with no indication of a business recession in immediate prospect.

CLEVELAND, March 15 — A pilotless plane was responsible today for its owner being in the hospital.

Edward Heller, 59, chief engineer of the Ohio Tool Co. here, was run down by his plane yesterday at Cleveland airport. Only quick action by Albert F. Drottler, 27-year-old mechanic, averted more serious damage.

According to witnesses, Heller swung the propeller of his plane
